Sony Heath - Healthy Relationships Presentation

Designed for students in a first-year seminar course (KU’s UNIV 101)

1. Brief introduction to the Sexual Assault Prevention and Education Center – 5 minutes
   a. Pre-survey (as students walk in)
   b. Mission
   c. Services
   d. Overview of presentation
   e. Ask students to share their name and one word describing how they’re feeling about their day or their expectations of the presentation.

2. Group guidelines and expectations – 5 minutes
   a. Listen actively
   b. Speak from own experience
   c. Respect confidentiality
   d. Lean into discomfort
   e. Self-care options
   f. Ask students to offer their own expectations

3. Small Item Icebreaker – 5 minutes
   a. Use a small item with a pop culture reference (Yoda Lego minifigure, Alfred E. Neuman lapel pin, etc)
   b. Ask a student to stand in the front of the room, hold the item, and explain to the other students what the item is without showing it to the other students.
   c. Ask the seated students to draw what is being described.
   d. Ask the seated students if they have any questions to help inform their drawing.
   e. Compare drawings and debrief the process of sharing and gathering information.
   f. Would students have been able to draw the item more successfully if they were more familiar with the pop culture reference? Did asking questions make it easier for the people drawing and/or the person describing the item?
   g. Encourage students to remember this process of sharing experiences and perspectives as they move through the healthy relationships presentation.

4. Transition into a conversation about healthy and unhealthy relationships via lineup activity – 15 minutes
   a. Acknowledge that some students may have previous knowledge or training regarding healthy/unhealthy relationships and/or intimate partner violence and ask them to share that knowledge as we move through the next activity.
      i. Students are then given 8-12 (depending on the size of the class) sheets of paper, each with a different relationship behavior on the front of the paper. Hand out each sheet individually, making sure students understand the behaviors.
      ii. Ask students to stand up at the front of the classroom and, while holding the sheets of paper, line up from “least abusive” behavior to most “abusive behavior”.

iii. If there are more students than sheets of paper, those students may help with the lineup.

iv. When students have decided on a final rank, review each behavior.

v. Why is (insert behavior) the least abusive?

vi. Why is (insert behavior) the most abusive?

vii. Does anyone disagree with the order?

viii. Does healthy jealousy exist? What does that look like?

ix. Examine physical versus emotional behaviors. Which are most abusive?

b. Help students break down the idea that these behaviors align on a continuum and discuss how personal experience paired with gender norms inform our expectations of a healthy/unhealthy relationship.

5. Ask students to pair up with another student in the class and share their experiences/thoughts/questions regarding the activity – 5 minutes

6. Have students share what they discussed in pairs and use their thoughts/questions to facilitate a conversation about the following as they relate to relationships, using specific examples from previous activity – 10 minutes
   a. Respect
   b. Non-Threatening Behavior
   c. Trust and Support
   d. Honesty and Accountability
   e. Equity
   f. Self-Worth
   g. Communication

7. Introduce the reality of gender based violence through the next activity – 10 minutes
   a. Create 3 columns on a chalkboard or flip-chart
   b. In the first, ask students to list terms that we, as a society, use to define women who have sex
   c. In the second column, ask students to list terms that we, as a society, use to define men who have sex
   d. In the third column, ask students to list terms that you might hear during the process of a hate crime
   e. Once the columns are complete, analyze the three columns with the students
      i. What do students notice about the lists?
      ii. Which list was the most uncomfortable to create and why?
      iii. When do we use these terms and where do they come from?
      iv. What is gender-based violence?

8. Have students pair up and discuss how these terms and gender norms impact the ways in which we interact with each other – why is language important? It is pervasive. – 5 minutes

9. Synthesize and wrap-up – 10 minutes
   a. Reflect on the earlier ice breaker, lineup activity, and column activity to emphasize the connection between personal experiences/perspectives and the impact of gender norms on relationship expectations and behaviors
b. How does all of this impact our Jayhawk community?

10. How to Help – 5 minutes
   a. Listen
   b. Validate
   c. Don’t Control
   d. Create Safe Environment

11. ACT reminder/introduction – 5 minutes
   a. Observe
   b. Assess
   c. ACT – Ask for help, Create distraction, Talk directly
   d. Follow up

12. Campus and Community Resources and Questions – 5 minutes
   a. Show SAPEC website, specifically resource wheel
   b. Explain types of resources and hand out resource wheel to each student

13. Free Writing – 5 minutes
   a. Have students spend the last 5 minutes free writing thoughts, questions, action items, and/or feedback that they can either take with them or leave for the facilitator.
   b. Free writes that are left behind should be included in assessment collection.

Learning Outcome 1 – Students can identify a variety of healthy relationship behaviors/characteristics Learning Outcome 2 – Students can define “gender-based violence”
Learning Outcome 3 – Students can identify campus resources Learning Outcome 4 – Students know how to intervene when they see unhealthy behaviors

NOTE: Live portion of presentation for purposes of interview will include numbers 6 and 7 of the above outline.
